

Why Multisorb Filtration Group Relies on JIT Toyota-Lift

They are our partner, providing comprehensive support after the sale

Kevin Barker is the Environmental, Health, and Safety Specialist at Multisorb Filtration Group. He told us what they like most about working with JIT.

“As the Safety Specialist, I mostly interact with the JIT team for our operator training programs and if we have a safety concern or issue in our facility. At previous companies, we did all of our training in house. I can tell you from personal experience that a lot of the time, the content wasn't great, or it was really short and simple, just so they could say they did it. I think it is 100% worth the expense to have JIT provide professional training. They come in person, go over everything, and they get straight to the point. Their team really takes the time to make sure everyone knows what is going on, what's expected of them, and then they do a hands on run through with them. It saves me a lot of time, and they make it really simple to schedule.”

They respond fast for any safety issues

“If we have a problem with our equipment or some other safety concern, JIT usually always responds and fixes it same day. For example, recently the battery area on one of our fork trucks was sparking. I contacted JIT, sent in a work order, and they made the repairs that day. They always answer the phone, and they never put off fixing a problem. They are 100% competent with repairs and are always prepared to get us exactly what we need, when we need it.”

JIT Toyota-Lift is our true partner

“JIT isn't just trying to sell you equipment. With other dealers, it's kind of like a used car salesman. They sell you something, make money off you, and then their only help after that is asking if you want to buy something else. Not at JIT. From training, to product instruction, to same day repairs, they're friendly, and they do it all. Their team has come out to show me how to use the tracking program on all our forklifts, and they brought the new Toyota SEnS system out for a demonstration during safety month. These are things they didn't have to do! I feel like they really care about our business.”

How to Help Prevent Accidents in Your Warehouse

Toyota's SEnS Smart Environment Sensor system

Avoid safety issues by immediately identifying pedestrians or objects behind your forklift using The SEnS system. It alerts operators to the presence of obstacles up to 32' away using warning lights and buzzer sounds that increase in intensity as the objects get closer, giving them enough time to slow down, stop, or turn.
